Legion Asks Regional Office In Batavia

Resolution Protests Proposed Plan To Remove Quarters of Veterans' Administration to New York City Post To Give Pancake Supper.

A resolution endorsing the effort to have the regional office of the Veterans Administration established at the new veterans hospital in Batavia, instead of being removed to New York from the present location in Buffalo, was passed at the last meeting of Williams-Greengrass Post, No. 730, American Legion, held Thursday evening, December 7. The resolution reads as follows:

WHEREAS, Newspaper reports have stated that the discontinuance of the Buffalo Regional Office of the Veterans Administration is contemplated in the interest of economy, and further reports are to the effect that the case load of the said Buffalo Regional Office will be transferred to the New York Regional Office, and

WHEREAS, There are approximately 138,000 World War veterans in the 31 counties covered by the Buffalo Regional Office, over sixty per centum of whom reside from Monroe County westward, the removal of the Buffalo Regional Office will cause great hardship to those veterans who have need of the services of the Veterans Administration, and

WHEREAS, Present regulations governing the adjudication of pension claims do not provide for the furnishing of transportation to those veterans who desire to appear before the rating Boards, for the prosecution of their claims, removal of the Regional Rating Boards from Buffalo to New York City would make the cost of transportation prohibitive for veterans residing in the western portion of the state and thus deprive them of the privilege granted by the Congress, and

WHEREAS, Previous experiments in the centralization of claims have proven to be failures from the standpoint of economy, efficiency and equity, now therefore be it

Addison Varsity Takes Flying Start in League By Beating Post

Playing "heads-up" basket ball all the way, the Addisonites won the first league game of the season Friday evening at Painted Post. Despite the fact the Addisonites were on a foreign court and facing a big crowd of partisan Indian fans, Coach Hewson's five clicked with the precision of a well oiled machine to hand the Posters the short end of a 16 to 10 score.

As may easily be judged by the low score, the game was a defensive battle from start to finish with the Addison zone defense keeping their opponents out of reach of the basket nearly all the evening. A team that can hold as strong a scoring five as the Post to 10 points, has to be on its toes every minute, but when a team can hold the Indians to a single basket through the last half of a game, that is almost a miracle. Yet the Addisonites did that very thing and that basket was a tap shot which was batted into the basket by Walton. The game became so hot and furious in the last half that it developed into something of a rough-house, but the Addison players of 1933 are not quite such delicate violets as past years, and the harder the goning the better the boys seemed to like it.

Robbins went into the game a marked man, and despite the fact the Indians aimed most of their heavy guns his way the local pivot man could not be kept down. He made three of his team's seven field baskets, got the tap fully half the time from a man considerably taller and at the same time held his opponent to one basket. Hickey

THE QUESTION OF CONTROL

The recent statement by President Roosevelt to the effect that the Federal Government will make no plans to control the distribution and sale of liquor may be regarded as the final decision of Uncle Sam to keep hands off.

But in eight states regulations are to be proposed for State stores, or dispensaries. This movement in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Virginia, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Oregon and Washington "listens" like echoes from across the ocean and Canada. Canada's sparce population is about the same as that of Pennsylvania. Students of the Canadian system differ as to its merits, but they all seem to be certain that it does not work in the cities and more heavily populated areas. Everyone knows that Canada is a paradise for bootleggers and rum-smugglers and that the Canadian loop-holes are wide open.

Should the states establish dispensaries all liquor to be drank off-the-premises would have to be bought by the public from these state stores. Under this plan the Governor would appoint a liquor purchasing agent to do all the buying for the state. This job would doubtless become a political plum which in many instances would make a Tammany politician turn green with envy. The agent would sit on the top of barrels, bottles and cases posed as a broker and dictator. It is impossible to ignore the possibilities of corruption likely to follow.

The distilling industry of the country has taken the position that it is pledged to combat pre-prohibition evils. The leaders say that they have no direct responsibility in the retail liquor business since in the repeal no distillery-owned outlets are contemplated. But control, they assert, is in the public interest as well as their own. The state dispensary plan is not regarded favorably by them. The prevailing sentiment among them was voiced by one of them, who said: "We welcome the state as a regulatory factor in controlling liquor, but as a distributive agency liquor would immediately become a political punching-bag, and it is to be feared that under such a system grafting would soon surpass the evils of prohibition days."

When the liquor interests themselves begin to see dangers in the offing which, as they say "would soon surpass the evils of Prohibition days", then indeed can the public be sure repeal has not actually restored the brightest star of hope back in the firmament. The liquor business always has been a troublesome business, as much so when legalized as during its outlaw days. It always will continue to be a troublesome business, whatever the restrictions and constraints that are tried for control.

The reason is not hard to find. Liquor is a narcotic with the power to absolutely destroy men's sense of right or wrong. It is all right to preach about temperance in the use of liquor, but in the last analysis the only real temperance can be found in abstinence. A few people can drink or leave it alone as they choose, yet the great majority of persons having started the use of liquors are impelled by a craving which can only be satisfied by more alcoholic beverages.

The very fact that the liquor business has always been founded, and thrived on the frailities of human nature seem to make those engaged in it almost as callous to court tenets as they are to humane laws. Even now press stories are carrying reports of widespread counterfeiting of labels and government revenue stamps, and the country will soon find men's tendency to disobey liquor laws did not end with repeal.

WINTER HAZARDS

The coming of winter, as the National Safety Council points out, brings with it a number of varied and important accident hazards.

Carbon monoxide is one of the foremost. Motorists warm up their cars in closed garages—and the inevitable result is more unnecessary tragedies to add to the annual death toll. Another field where winter brings an increase in fatalities is in hunting—nearly one-half of all firearms deaths each year occur from November to February. Careless or inexperienced sportsmen carry loaded guns in vehicles, leave them leaning against trees, draw them barrel foremost after them when crossing fences, shoot at moving, unseen objects, and so on. And the accident toll soars.

To most of us, winter driving presents the principal hazard. Streets are wet and ice-covered. Darkness comes early. Driving practices that are reasonably safe in the summer, become extremely dangerous. The condition of one's tires, brakes and windshield wiper is vastly more important than at any other time of the year.

Every motorist should have his car examined at the beginning of winter to make certain it is in good operating condition. Then he should remember that only 15 per cent of car accidents can be laid to mechanical failure, and that in the balance the human element must bear the blame. The only course to pursue is to drive with a maximum of care under any and all conditions—and drive as little as possible when roads and weather conditions are exceptionally bad.

THE IDEAL FOR TRANSPORTATION

In a recent address, Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation, said: "The railroad industry is going through one of its periodic crises, a crisis which this time is heightened by the coincidence of economic depression and new competitive conditions. The truck, the bus, the private automobile, the airplane, the pipe lines, the electric transmission line, the waterways—they are all here, they are here to stay, and they make a formidable array . . .

"The end to pursue is a transportation system which will make use of each of the various agencies for the purpose to which it is best adapted, and cut out duplication and waste . . . In many instances these other transportation agencies can be used in coordination with railroad service to the great advantage of all concerned."

At the moment, as the Railway Age points out, we are applying a "planned economy" to the railroads, involving elimination of unnecessary competition and reduction of facilities which duplicate each other, and at the same time we are permitting "planless economy" to continue in transportation in general, making it infinitely more difficult for the railroads to share in recovery. This encourages extremely wasteful transport practices which must eventually be paid for by the public.

Mr. Eastman's ideal is the thing to be sought—a balanced, equitably regulated system of transportation, which regulates each type of carrier to the place where it can be of greatest service to the shipping and traveling public. Any other course is economically and socially unjustifiable.

One of the great draw-backs to recovery for the farmers is high cost of transportation. A few years ago it cost approximately $4 to get a ton of hay marketed from the railroad siding; now it costs about $8. In recent years much farm produce has netted the growers a less sum than the freight on that produce going to the market. This is a bad condition, and no real prosperity can be restored until it is corrected. Nor are the railroads wholly to blame. Much of the blame must be attributed to overburdening taxes, and interference of the government with the conduct of railroad business.

A POTENTIALLY DANGEROUS CODE

There is mounting opposition, especially on the part of dairy farmers in the New York milk shed and elsewhere, to certain provisions in the proposed national trucking code which is now being considered and revised by government officials and the trucking industry.

The code is designed to outlaw unfair competition, and to do away with uneconomic trucking practices—purposes which deserve and receive full public support. But there is danger that, in accomplishing this, technicalities will arise which will make the letter of the code defeat its spirit. For example, under the proposed code no farmer could haul a neighbor's milk, hay or other produce to market for compensation even once a year without filing a schedule of rates, securing a license or permit, securing and displaying insignia and complying with all the rules applicable to a regular commercial trucker. No farmer driving into town could bring back a few bags of feed for his neighbor, if he were paid for it, without doing precisely the same things.

In brief, the code would, to a large extent, prevent farmers from following the age-old practice of "swapping" work, and would compel every farmer to either do his own hauling or hire a commercial trucker every time he wanted a crate of eggs or a half-dozen cans of milk taken to town for shipment, or wanted a load of fertilizer brought back. According to one authority, the code would raise farmers' trucking costs 50 to 75 per cent at a time when agriculture is fighting for its very existence.

It is one thing to permit an industry to clean its own house—and another to lay down regulations which make common, time-honored practices illegal.

THE KING FISH

Senator Huey P. Long is having busy days in Louisiana attempting to put over the widow of a Congressman as the "unopposed" candidate to succeed her husband. Governor Allen arranged the calling of the election on short notice to make it impossible for any name except Mrs. Kemp's to be placed on the ballot.

Besides, the investigation by a United States Senate Committee has produced facts concerning general political corruption in Louisiana. Senator Long's continuance in his office is threatened. Both he and Senator Overton will be under fire as soon as Congress meets in January.

Long is regarded as a bad man and a dangerous official in Washington official circles. Such politicians have invaribly come to grief in the past, and it is believed in Washington that Long's conduct will hasten his departure from public life.

A LITTLE BOY PLAYS WITH FIRE

Chaos is envisioned as resulting from Professor Tugwell's proposed new food and drug law to be considered at the coming session of Congress.
The Tugwell Bill places in jeopardy the jobs of approximately 1,775,000 employees in the food, drug, cosmetic and allied industries, according to the New York Board of Trade.
The consumer will be the ultimate sufferer because the economic structure of the country would be endangered Each individual would feel the stress of the increased cost of medication and the lowered standard of living.
The Tugwell Bill is a prohibitory measure. It would curb a free press in its censorship of advertising and it would bring three major industries under the control of a bureaucratic czar. Public sentiment expressed through members of congress will defeat this measure.

Meeting of Republican County Chairmen Proves Lively Affair

Albany, Dec. 12—The meeting of Republican County Chairmen and Vice Chairmen at Utica last Friday is still the chief topic of discussion in political circles. It was called by State Chairman Macy, for the purpose, as he said, of bringing into the open what he feels has been the chief cause of Republican defeats that have cost the party in the past dozen years the Governorship and the State Senate, as well as Congressmen and a United States Senatorship, and would have included the Assembly this year had it not been for the upheaval in New York City which carried into office there 13 members instead of the two elected a year ago, thus offsetting a net loss of three members up-state and increasing the Republican majority in the Assembly from two to ten.

Program Looking to Success

By his opponents as well as his supporters Chairman Macy is given credit for a very large part in thus saving the Assembly to the party. His belief is that it will be possible to win new support and bring back old support to the party on the same basis on which the New York City victory was achieved — a breaking away from political methods that have been discredited, including elimination of the theory so often proven wrong but still held by certain leaders that the only way the Republicans can win in a Statewide contest is by doing legislative favors for Tammany in expectation of receiving in return Tammany votes which never materialize; and, perhaps most important, removal of the basis for charges that the Republican party is dominated by the "Power Trust", along with liberalization of the party's policies generally, and a sincere effort to make it an instrument for good government instead of a mere medium for distributing political favors.

Job-Holders Think Party Theirs

The execution of this program, it is obvious, would mean the breaking up of a small ring of office-holders and job-holders who have been on the payroll so many years that they apparently have reached the conclusion that the Republican party is maintained for their special benefit, to be used as they see fit. Conspicuous in this group is Fred W. Hammond of Onondaga County, who for 21 years has been clerk of the Assembly, a job paying directly some $6,000 a year for three months' service and carrying "perquisites" regarded as the most valuable about the Capitol. Mr. Hammond has the appointment of more than 200 employees as well as the fixing of their salaries. He has used this power in such manner that for years it has been the complaint of Assemblymen that Onondaga and one or two other counties in the combination have received constant favors at the expense of justice to the balance of the state. However great this dissatisfaction, except in rare cases it has not been made too audible for fear the complaining ones might be deprived of the little they already had, and in addition might suffer in the distribution of committee appointments and even in consideration of their bills. In other words, the clerk, though always working in the background, has been generally recognized as the czar of the Assembly, not only controlling appointments to positions totalling more than $300,000, but in a position to exercise a great influence on legislation, especially while in committee.

Speaker Assured of Support

It was this situation which gave point to the request telegraphed by Chairman Macy to all Assemblymen-elect on election night that they refrain from giving pledges to any one for positions in organization of the Assembly until there was opportunity for conference among the party leaders. It has been Mr. Hammond's custom to ask pledges from all Republican members as soon as elected, or even before, thus attempting to foreclose the position in advance and bar all other candidates. Inasmuch as Speaker McGinnies has been accustomed to do the same thing, Chairman Macy called him on the telephone election night, read the telegram to him and gave assurance he would not oppose the Speaker's re-election—an assurance which was repeated publicly at the Utica meeting.

Brings Fight Into Open

The Utica meeting, which probably had more fireworks to the square inch than any other state political gathering in a generation, had for a secondary purpose, according to Mr. Macy's own statement, the bringing into the open of certain forces which have been conducting an undercover campaign against the State Chairman ever since his election. In this he succeeded, and revealed that they are made up almost entirely of persons holding for many years profitable jobs which they are anxious to retain to the exclusion of all others, however great the latter's party service. It was interesting to see the fervor with which these forces sprang into action when the chairman pointed to the defeats of the past dozen years as proof of the damage done by the generally accepted close alliance between persons of influence and power in the party and the utility interests; declared that this relationship is ruining the party, and that there is little or no chance of success as long as it continues. The Republican party, he declared, will again have the full confidence of the people when it proves its sincerity by eliminating even the appearance of such relationship, and only thus can make its position unassailable.

Evidently Much is at Stake

That there is much more at stake than the job of Mr. Hammond was apparent by the elaborate seriousness with which his defenders prepared for Friday's meeting. It was generally accepted that a system was the issue, rather than an individual. A lobby large in number was summoned, and among the speakers drafted were Congressman James W. Wadsworth and William J. Donovan, candidate for governor last year. Arriving chairmen were intercepted through the night and at 2:00 o'clock in the morning a caucus was held. Another caucus was held next day at 11:00. Emissaries were sent to invite the State Chairman into a secret conference to "adjust matters", which he declined to attend on the ground that whatever he had to say he would say in the open. In the meeting Friday afternoon Mr. Macy was attacked and defended through a four-hour barrage of oratory, but did not budge from his position, and the conference ended with the passing of a resolution offered by former Congressman Danvenport of Oneida County containing practically everything the Chairman had asked for, including a recommendation that the Assemblymen be freed of any pledges hurriedly exacted from them following the election, in order "that they may carry out their own representative will and the will of the people of the State."

Express Confidence in Legislators

The conference passed also a resolution offered by Senator Fearon expressing confidence in the honesty and integrity of all members of the Legislature, the Senator having previously contended that Mr. Macy's attack on the alliance of certain persons with the utility interests reflected upon them. Later, in response to a question, the Chairman said there was no such intention and referred to the text of his address as proof. There was no opposition to this resolution, though several members of the conference did not vote on it, one of the Vice Chairmen explaining that inasmuch as most of the members were unknown to her it was not possible to vote intelligently on the subject. On the resolution of Congressman Davenport committing the party to a progressive program there were two dissenting votes, Rockland and Oswego counties.

Political Observers Are Puzzled

Veterans in Albany who have been observing politics for a number of years are wondering about the wisdom of Congressman Wadsworth and Col. Donovan in actively entering into an intro-party affair which on the surface apparently does not involve them. The wiseacres agree that there is some purpose back of their action, but they do not by any means agree as to what it is.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

What might be termed the "battle of the bottles" got into full swing at Washington during the week before prohibition repeal became an actuality. The fight is between the Federal government and the liquor manufacturers. The distillers came forward with a code of their own making, saw it at once discarded. It was replaced with a code drawn up at the President's suggestion, which gave a very different slant to the picture than manufacturers had hoped. Under it a government corporation would be formed to handle the entire wholesale liquor business. Provisions include:

A Federal Alcohol Control Administration, with czar-like power over the industry, which would rule without liquor representation; complete control over production and distribution through a quota system; authority to fix and regulate prices; no additions to existing distilling capacity could be built without a certificate of necessity from the Administration; an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture to pay "parity" prices, fixed by him, for raw materials used in distilling.

The liquor industry had anticipated some sort of Federal control, but they had not thought it would be so relentless as this. Paticularly distasteful to them was the provision concerning plant additions—practically every major distiller is in the midst of expansion. Plants are partly finished, which may have to be scrapped if the code goes into effect. Their protests found small sympathy at Washington; it was intimated in some quarters that if they didn't like it they were liable to be met with a plan for a gigantic Federal sales system.

In the meantime, the states have been rushing plans to control sales within their borders. Influence of the Rockefeller report is seen in many bills; there is strong sentiment in favor of eliminating private profit so far as the sale end is concerned. Bulk of states which have definitely passed laws allow sales of beer and wine in restaurants and hotel dining rooms; about half allow all drinks to be sold in this manner. Minors and known drunkards are forbidden to buy or to be sold to. Drug, grocery stores and hotels and restaurants will be allowed to sell in bulk for the most part. Montana will operate its own liquor stores, and Oregon probably will do likewise. Nevada will permit local control; Reno will have the old-time saloon without closing hours. Most of the states have yet to make definite regulations, but this indicates the trend of thought on the matter.

Cost of liquor is a burning subject. The hope is expressed that it will be possible to sell legal whiskey and gin, of fair quality, for $1.50 or $2.00 a quart within a short time. If prices are much higher than this, it is believed that the bootlegger and the speakeasy will have little trouble in keeping their trade.

Director of the Budget Lewis Douglas doesn't often appear in the headlines. But no man knows so much about government income and outgo; none is so well qualified to speak on the financial state of the nation.

The other day he did speak, and it wasn't very cheery. In the fiscal year 1934, he forecast, the national debt will be substantially increased, because of the Public Works bill, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and similar new bodies. He didn't say how much the deficit would be, observed that he couldn't until certain governmental policies had become better defined.

The brighter side of taxation came out when he talked about 1935. He said that if industry is ten per cent recovered by then, 1935 income would be close to a billion in excess of expenses, barring additional extraordinary expenditures. General Johnson recently said that business was 25 per cent improved.

Mr. Douglas wound up by saying that if additional obligations are contracted, additional taxes must be imposed; he addressed himself to the great American middle class which bears such burdens principally.

The business indicators, which have been showing a gradual letdown from the summer peak, are looking somewhat better. Most recent reports show: COAL production up. Heavy CONSTRUCTION contracts more than double in recent week. LUMBER orders for a recent week were the heaviest since May, 1930. STEEL production, after a long period of downward tendencies, showed an up flare, but is well below summer average. COMMODITY PRICES continuing their steady advance. BUSINESS FAILURES at a low point.

The wave of commodity buying, which followed the first flush of excitement over the NRA, has weakened, and retail outlets find business slower, with strong consumer opposition to higher prices. The volume of Christmas buying, on which reports will be available after the first of the year, will be an excellent indication of just how far recovery has advanced so far as the average citizen is concerned.

Addison Chief To Enforce Liquor Laws

Chief of Police Bovee seeks the co-operation of all law-abiding Addison citizens in his efforts to enforce the new rules relating to traffic in alcoholic beverages.

"Mr. Mulrooney'" says the Addison chief, "Has placed it squarely up to us police officers to enforce the new rules. I intend to follow his instructions and arrest any person whom I have evidence is breaking the law. As long as I am chief of police here, I shall do my utmost to see that law and order prevail, and may whomever it affects suffer the consequences.

"The people evidently wanted a change from prohibition, and they voted for restoration of legal liquor. But there are certain restrictions concerning the sale of liquor and the man who dispenses it without a license today is just as much of a bootlegger as the man who evaded the prohibition law. One benefit I see from the new arrangement is the certainty that the law violator can be meted quicker, surer punishment than seemed possible under prohibition.

"It is practically certain that one of the chief reasons influencing people for restoration of legal liquor lay in the fact it would then carry a portion of the tax burden. Bootlegged beverages will not pay governmental costs, and officials are determined to stamp it out. I am sure that the sympathies of all just minded persons must now be with the officers doing their duty in enforcing the law. There is no place in Addison at present which can legally sell liquors in containers to be taken from the premises, and any local person or firm who does so will be prosecuted when apprehended.

"Laws are intended for the protection of the public, and I am enlisting the co-operation of Addison citizens to see that the liquor rules as well as other laws are obeyed in this community.

proved the big surprise ace in the hole for Addison, slipping through the Post secondary defense for two nice shots from difficult angles and holding his forward to a single field goal and one foul. Wilson and Flynn each made a field basket and one good shot from the free throw line. The principal Addison weakness being on foul shots, making only two out of eight chances.

The Addisonites plainly showed they were in that game to win, and the aggregation was on its toes every second of play. Every time a ball hit the banking board there was an Addison man leaping in the air to get it on the rebound, and a majority of the time they trapped it. Hickey and Hopper both were a tower of strength that way, preventing the Indians from getting dozens of follow-up shots by their being there first when the ball hit the board.

Painted Post started quite strong, taking a lead of 3 to 2 at the quarter and 8 to 7 at the half. Walton made another field goal for the Indians in the third quarter, but then Hickey burst through to score his two baskets putting the visitors one point to the good. In the final quarter the Indians did not get a smell of the basket, while Robbins came through with two field goals and Flynn added the extra point from the free throw line.

This victory coming at the beginning of the league season on a foreign court, will give Coach Hewson's boys a lot of confidence which will carry them a long ways in the coming hard schedule. They know now they can win from a strong league team, and any five which trims them will have to play basket ball.

Post Reserves Too Strong For Addison Frosh

Playing more to gain experience than to annex a victory, Coach Hewson's varsity reserves and freshman team lost to the Painted Post second team. The Addison Coach used first a line-up of his second string players and then threw in a team of freshmen, which is being coached by Frank Finnerty. The game remained close throughout the first three quarters, but in the last stanza the larger Painted Post second team players went on a scoring rampage against the Addison freshman, making 10 points to the latter's 3 and putting the contest on ice.

Hargrave was the best scoring bet for Addison, making 6 points during the three quarters he played. Higbee of Painted Post was a constant threat, making 10 of his team's 24 points

The whiskered tossers are no freaks as far as court ability is concerned, and will make the Addison town team step to keep up. The game will start at 8:30 in the Main Street gym.

Addisonites Took an Easy Win From St. Mary's

The Addison High School basket ball team took a game from St. Mary's of Corning Saturday evening 31 to 27. While the final score looks close, as a matter of fact the Addisonites were not compelled to extend themselves at any stage of the game to beat Coach "Feets" Flannery's Irish squad. The count at the end of the first quarter was Addison 13, St. Mary's 6; at the half Addison 21, St. Mary's 12. In the third period Coach Hewson threw several of his reserves into the game and the Corning team began to show some of the playing stuff they were reported to possess.

The few fans who turned out to the game could well see the reason Painted Post lost the evening before, as it was a vastly different looking Addison team which stepped around the floor. A larger, rangier squad of players that pass the ball with easy surety, and execute plays with a snap and dash which makes difficult moves look simple, were roving at will in the Addison uniforms. With the possible exception of one player, it would hardly be said the Addisonites are made up of stars, yet the team works together and clicks so efficiently in its plays the outfit acts like a well oiled machine.

The game Saturday started off with a bang, St. Mary's getting the first basket soon after tip-off. Wilson did not leave them in the lead long as he jockeyed into position in the corner and made a neat one-handed shot that tallied two points. Robbins quickly followed with his first basket and then Wilson crossed the Corning players up by dribbling through their midst for another tally. Wilson tossed in his third basket just before St. Mary's tallied twice, the second shot being a long steve through the hoop. Wilson was fouled and made good his free try. Robbins was robbed of a field basket by a foul as he was shooting. Just to get even he tossed cleanly twice from the free throw line, and then made a cripple just before the quarter ended.

Hovey came in for Flynn in the second period. St. Mary's registered fifty per cent perfect on two foul shots, but Hovey tore in to make a pretty basket pushing the ball in with one hand while in the air. A St. Mary's player was fouled and added a point. Hovey took the ball away from a Corning boy and dribbled in for a cripple. St. Mary's made two free throws register as many points. Hovey got another one-handed basket. St. Mary's made a field goal, and just before the end of the half Robbins dribbled the entire length of the center court to drop in a cripple.

In the third quarter Robbins started it off with another basket. Hickey was fouled and added a point. Hovey missed two foul shots and Lindsley who had gone in for Wilson, missed another. St. Mary's put on a scoring spurt, dropping in three baskets and a free throw to creep up within 5 points of the Addisonites at the third quarter.

St. Mary's opened the period with a basket. Wilson tossed one in. The visitors added a basket and foul goal. Wilson made another and Flynn scored from the foul line. Corning added 3 more points. Robbins made a basket with an overhand shot his guard could not stop for the last score of the game.

Post Girls Beat Addison Lassies

In two preliminaries to the varsity victory Friday evening, the Addison girls lost 14 to 10, and the second team dropped a decision to the Post reserves 24 to 16. The girls' game was close all the way through, and given the breaks the Addison sextet might easily have won.

The Post girls assumed a lead of 8 to 4 in the first half, and although Addison equaled them in scoring during the last two quarters, the locals could not quite catch up. Tobin was the marked player on the Addison sextet, and was held to two field baskets, partly by close guarding and partly by technicalities prevented several more of her points being counted. Ohls was the big gun for the Squaws, making 10 of her team's 14 points. The Post girls were given 5 free throws at the basket to Addison's 1, but that did not affect the final verdict as not a point was scored from the foul line.

J. C. Latham New Republican County Chairman

Succeeds Dr. W. W. Bachman of Bath—New Chairman Long Active in Party Councils.

Joseph C. Latham, publisher of the Canisteo Times, was unanimously elected chairman of the Steuben County Republican Committee at a meeting in Bath last Saturday afternoon. The meeting was attended by more than 150 committeemen representing all the seventy-nine districts in the county.

Dr. William W. Bachman of Bath, the retiring chairman, in offering his resignation stated that the exacting duties of the position as well as the time demanded in administration precluded the possibility of his continuing in the chairmanship. A resolution that the resignation of Dr. Bachman be regretfully accepted was offered by Former Sheriff W. B. Page of Arkport.

The name of Mr. Latham was placed in nomination by Dr. E. W. Woodbury of Bath, an early aspirant for the position who withdrew upon the entry of Mr. Latham into the race. Carl Wellington of Hornell seconded the nomination. Other speakers were attorney Clarence Briscoe of Corning; Judge Brown; District Attorney Pratt; former District Attorney Cheney; H. O. Elkins, editor of the Bath Courier; Judge John C. Wheeler of Corning and Attorney Charles L. Crane of Addison.

Mr. Latham, the new chairman, has been for more than twenty-five years owner and editor of the Canisteo Times, an influential Republican weekly. He has also been for a greater portion of this time active in Republican party circles.

Safe and Sane Christmas

"Most Americans in the last quarter century favor the safe and sane Fourth of July, but how many are conscious of the hazards of Christmas as it is celebrated in the typical American home?" asks the New York state college of home economics.

Because Canta Claus is associated with snow, Christmas trees are surrounded with cotton-wool or white tissue paper to imitate snow. Then they are hung with inflammable ornaments of cut paper and celluloid. Finally they are lighted with candles. Other parts of the house are hung with evergreen branches or ropes, holly, mistletoe and ropes or other ornaments made from crepe or tissue paper. Often these are hung on gas fixtures. A single spark, alighting almost anywhere in a room so decorated, can find just the sort of fuel it likes best.

Substitutes can be had for everyone of the dangerous articles used in trimming for Christmas. The tree can be surrounded by non-inflammable asbestos wool. Tree ornaments of blown glass should be used instead of celluloid. The tree should not be lighted unless electric lights are used, and even with these special care should be taken to be sure that the wiring and the lights are in good condition. Christmas greens should not be kept in the house for more than two or three days, because they dry quickly and when dry are highly inflammable. Cleaning up after Christmas is the most important precaution of all.

Inventory Time Almost At Hand

Farmers Need to Take Stock of Their Resources and Prepare Credit Statements if They Desire Loans.

The annual period for taking a farm inventory is the first week of the year, January 1 to 6, according to H. R. Varney of the New York state college of agriculture.

Each year, a large number of New York state farmers find it is good business to take an annual farm inventory and fill out a credit statement, Mr. Varney says. He adds that having a credit statement is rapdily becoming a necessary first step in obtaining short time loans.

Mr. Varney points out that because a number of commercial banks have closed, the amount of bank credit available for the 1934 crop year will be limited. Before making loans of any size, many bank examiners require that the borrower present a credit statement, he says.

For 1934, the various Federal loaning agencies are consolidated under one head. Funds from the Federal intermediate credit banks will become available to farmers through local agencies known as production credit associations, which will be established during the winter and spring. Each local credit association is expected to serve an area of one or more counties, and for each unit a membership of ten or more farmers, eligible for loans, is required. To establish his eligibility for loans from a production credit association, a farmer needs a farm inventory and a credit statement, Mr. Varney says.

Persons interested in forming a local association, he says, should make application to the production credit corporation at Springfield, Massachusetts.

The New York farm inventory is sponsored by the New York state college of agriculture, in cooperation with the county farm bureaus and the New York state bankers' association. Inventory books may be obtained from the college, or from the local county agricultural agent, or rural bank.

Varied Agriculture To Be Stressed In 1934 Farm Bureau Program

Every phase of Steuben County's varied agriculture will receive special consideration in the 1934 program of the Steuben County Farm Bureau. Important itmes in the dairy program, are the improvement of pastures, a better bull campaign, increased use of dairy records, and the continued sale of surplus dairy cattle.

In planning its program the farm bureau potato committee decided to make a study of the frading of potatoes, and the affect of trucking on the sale of the crop. The investigation of underground insects begun in 1933 will be continued. Field tests will be conducted on the various varieties of potatoes, kinds of fertilizer. The winter convention and a summer field meeting will be held.

Disease and marketing problems will be emphasized in the poultry program. All the numerous personal services will be continued. The bureau aims to offer the best possible program the coming year.

State Federation Serves

For more than ten years the New York State Farm Bureau Federation has been engaged in a program which would relieve real estate of excessive taxation by transferring certain costs to other forms of wealth. As a consequence, the state now pays many costs formerly borne by the town and county.

The Federation's program as outlined in its recent annual meeting, aims to restore the 12½ per cent reduction of state aid for town roads, the state to bear the entire cost of snow removal on state roads, the state to buy the right of way for state roads. These items will greatly reduce costs now borne by rural communities.

Two other items of the farm bureau federation program are of particular interest to Steuben County. One is that the license of automobiles and trucks should be issued on a fractional year basis. The other is to oppose the proposed abolishment of Grade A milk. The premiums paid Steuben Grade A producers amount to approximately $25,000 a year.

Dr. Gifford Talks of Burma

A large attendance was present at the Addison Baptist Church Sunday evening to hear Dr. Martha Gifford, missionary to Burma.

Dr. Gifford used as the text of her address Matt. 5:13-16 — "Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and trodden under foot of men. A city that is set on a hill can not be hid. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel,but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." With this text Dr. Gifford brought home, forcibly, the missionary work all Christians can and should do at home. She referred to the salt as having two purposes. One to preserve and the other to give flavor. Christians are the salt. They preserve the word of Christ and with His teachings add flavor to the world.

In speaking of Burma Dr. Gifford recalled the differences in the climate of Burma and New York. Burma has an average rainfall of 200 inches annually. This brings about a tropical condition with advantages and disadvantages. Among the disadvantages are the white ants that cause much property damage. The climate and soil are ideal for rice, that being their chief crop and staple food. Quite a little rice is also raised for exporting.

The customs of the people are quite different in Burma from other parts of Asia. The most striking is the freedom of women. In Burma the women have about the same freedom as American women and excercise a great influence over Burmese society. The Burmese woman goes about freely and may even go into business for herself or manage the affairs of her husband. She is a neat and attractive woman and lives a life in great contrast to that of her Chinese and Indian sisters who live very secluded lives.

In their manners they are primitive. In Burma fingers were made, and still used, before forks. While they eat with their fingers they are very clean and dainty. The hands are always washed before meals, and the right hand is used exclusively for conveying the food from the plate to the mouth. The hand is always dampened to prevent the rice from sticking to their fingers and the meal is completed with very little rice on the fingers and none on the shirt front.

The dwelling houses are made of bamboo and thatch and contain from one to three rooms. They are built on stilts and entered by a small ladder. Underneath the house is the place where the children play or the domestic animals are kept.

Coming back to the Christians in America, Dr. Gifford touched on the prohibition question and how the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would affect the natives in the various mission fields who look to the United States for guidance and example. She said prohibition has been tried by law and shown to have failed. Now it is up to the Christians in America to make prohibition a success through the love of God. We must let our light shine on a candlestick instead of under a bushel and the light that shines the farthest shines the brightest close at hand. If we would that our light would reach the people of Burma that they may be guided and helped the lights must shine brightly here in America.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. George Andrus, Mrs. Henry Carpenter and Andrew Cornell and John Hotaling, attended Steuben County Pomona Grange in Avoca last week.

DAIRYMEN WANT Results!

ESHELMAN officials say: "Feeders for whom we have the greatest respect, who have repeatedly made money and who have been able to show a profit year after year . . . tell us they are not so much interested in how cheap we can make our rations, but how RESULTFUL we can make them.

"With evidence of this kind coming from farmers who are considered successful and who run their farms with the idea of making money, it is only natural that we should work with them and build our feeds so that they will fit in with their scheme of feeding.

"Eshelman grains and feeds are built to meet the needs of dairymen who appreciate the value of the best ingredients, and who feed for PROFIT. These dairymen are our customers because they know that ESHELMAN feeds produce RESULTS"
